

6 COMMON CHALLENGES IDD AGENCIES FACE

IDD agencies have the primary mission to provide quality care for individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities to help them manage various aspects of their daily lives. However, there are many administrative challenges associated with running an IDD agency. The following information lists some of the common challenges IDD agencies face within their operations.

1

OVERWORKED

With running an agency, staff find themselves overworked and overburdened with administrative tasks while balancing time to provide care.

2

PAPERWORK OVERLOAD

IDD agencies generate an overwhelming amount of paperwork, taking up time and office space.

3

DISORGANIZED DATA ENTRY

Disjointed record-keeping and redundant data entry often occur with current systems, increasing errors and consuming valuable time.

4

RESOURCE STRAIN

Administrative tasks and challenges reduce the amount of time that could be used for providing care for patients.

5

MANUAL DATA ENTRY

Traditional systems have staff manually entering data involving thorough attendance and activity details which is time-consuming and prone to errors.

6

OPERATIONAL INEFFICIENCY

The challenges agencies face result in lacking the capability to efficiently organize and analyze data with the resources they use.
